NOTES:

Known Sphere Of Operation: Empire-wide use

Data Reliability: a

Major Data Source: Klingon Sector Intelligence

The D-7G, named 'Truthbringer' after the Klingon K't'alla, was the direct result of the first Romulan-Klingon technology exchanges, as part of which the Klingons received 24 Romulan plasma weapons of the RPL-1 type. Sixteen of these were immediately installed on D-7s, and the remaining weapons were given to weapons research firms within the Empire. The conversions to D-7G's were made on D-7A's which otherwise remained the same. The plasma weapon design required the ship to be close to the enemy in order to fire, and most Klingon commanders did not like the tactics that the weapon dictated, hence no Klingon commander felt comfortable with the conversions.

Of the 16 D-7G's built, 10 were converted to D-7R's, 4 were destroyed, 1 was captured by Star Fleet, and 1 is in the service of a ranking family within the Empire.
